5. Based upon the identification of accounts as described above by its clearing firm, the Respondent Quick & Reilly, Inc. executed approximately 8500 sale transactions of worthless securities. Such transactions were executed in accordance with the terms of the customer agreement and without prior authorization from the Accountholders of these accounts. 686 of these transactions were executed for Illinois resident accountholders or for accounts associated with Illinois branch offices;
6. Nationwide, securities that were sold as worthless were sold at a price of $.01 for the total lot of each worthless security with the Respondent as the purchaser of the worthless securities;
7. All Accountholders, including Illinois residents, received account statements and trade confirmation notices which included the notation "Client requested sale of worthless stock", despite the fact the Accountholders did not request such sale and, as later learned in some cases, the securities were not worthless;
8. The above referenced transactions involved securities as that term is defined pursuant to Section 2.1 of the Illinois Securities Law of 1953 [815 ILCS 5/1 et seq. (the "Act")];
9. In 338 of the transactions from Illinois, the securities sold as worthless were later valued at approximately $ 29,971;

13. Quick & Reilly, Inc.'s system relied on its clearing firm for assistance in identifying and eliminating accounts with small debit balances, including accounts containing worthless securities and generated confirmations which included the notation "Client requested sale of worthless stock", despite the fact that the Accountholders did not request such sale, and in some cases, the securities may have had some value;
14. Quick & Reilly, Inc. failed to identify and correct the aforesaid erroneous notation for approximately 8500 transactions which would have appeared on account statements and trade confirmation notices sent to Quick & Reilly, Inc.'s Accountholders;
15. Section 8.E.1(b) of the Act states, inter alia, that subject to the provisions of subsection F of Section 11 of the Act, the registration of a dealer may be suspended or revoked if the Secretary of State finds that the dealer has engaged in any unethical practice in the offer or sale of securities;
16. Section 8.E.1(e) (i) of the Act states, inter alia, that subject to the provisions of subsection F of Section 11 of the Act, the registration of a dealer may be suspended or revoked if the Secretary of State finds that the dealer has failed reasonably to supervise the securities activities of any of its salespersons or other employees and the failure has permitted or facilitated a violation of Section 12 of the Act;
17. Section 8.E.1(e) (iv) of the Act states, inter alia, that subject to the provisions of subsection F of Section 11 of the Act, the registration of a dealer may be suspended or revoked if the Secretary of State finds that the dealer has failed to maintain and enforce written procedures to supervise the activities of its salespersons that are reasonably designed to achieve compliance with applicable securities laws and regulations; and
18. At all times relevant hereto, Respondent Quick & Reilly, Inc., failed reasonably to supervise the system for identifying and eliminating accounts with small debit balances, including accounts containing worthless securities. Respondent's clearing firm generated confirmations which included the notation "Client requested sale of worthless stock", despite the fact that the Accountholders did not request such sale, and in some cases, the securities may have had some value. Quick & Reilly failed to identify the aforesaid erroneous notation on hundreds of its account statements and trade confirmation notices sent to its clients and securities were sold as worthless securities without their authorization, thereby facilitating violations of Section 12.A of the Act.
